

Bernold Hasenknopf is chemistry professor at Sorbonne University (formerly UPMC) in Paris, France. His research interests are in supramolecular chemistry, from multimetallic assemblies (polyoxometalates) to organic architectures. His current projects concern cyclodextrin-polyrotaxanes. As a teacher, he is engaged in the pedagogical transformation of higher education.